

AGGIES On A Quest For Success

April 9, 2018

... from Mr. Moore's Desk

Greetings Parents & Scholars:

One week and a half... Ten days to be exact is all we have before FSA Reads.

With that being said, during this time I am merely asking each parent to enforce bed times until after all testing. I am also asking that you ask your babies if they have any practice homework. I am calling it practice homework as it will be material specific to their needs as a class or individually. This will be in addition to the i-Ready required work.

The rigor level has been increased, as have the expectations as I am not only trying to get them ready for this year's FSA, but prepared for life as a middle schooler. This week we will be reviewing main idea, figurative language and author's perspective heavily. Other standards will be focused on in small groups.

I am asking all parents to enforce studying of affixes and any material sent home by me, as each student may have a different assignment based upon his or her needs.

If you have any questions please contact me.
Thank You!

Mr. Moore

Very Important Program Reminder

Parents for the remainder of the year, Tiger has brought on a program many of you are familiar with called Achieve 3000.

Achieve is a program that adapts to meet our scholars where they are and utilizes non-fiction articles. This is being used in addition to i-Ready and I am asking that you allow our scholars to get in it, especially over these next two weeks.

FSA Information

Parents this next week will be rigorous on steroids. We will be using our WEBB's DOK Question Stems to recognize leveled questions. The passages are longer in the 5th grade so it is imperative that you push our babies at home, as well as ensure that they are going to bed on time with minimal distraction. Please make sure they are reading nightly for 45 minutes.

I am asking each of you to review their prefixes and suffixes with them daily as well as have them read nightly.
