

AGGIES On A Quest For Success

February 19, 2018

... from Mr. Moore's Desk

Greetings Parents & Scholars:

One week and counting! That's right the first of the three days of testing in this year's FSA Reading is Tuesday, March 6th. Parents these next two weeks will be filled with review in which the scholars and I will meet and look over all of the writing pieces and they will be given tasks to do to not only to improve their weaknesses but to enhance their strengths.

I am asking you to ensure that our babies are going to bed on time beginning this week if they have not had a strict bedtime.

Please keep in mind that the proper amount of sleep and nutrition will help to ensure the scores that they are capable of making and the ones we desire. It is also a request that we keep them focused on everything positive.

With that in mind, I am planning to have a half day relaxation day on Monday, March 5th. This of course is contingent upon administrative approval. It is my hope to have a cookout, play time and a motivational movie. I will take care of most of the food, but will need help from some of you for the rest. On the menu will be chicken, hotdogs and hamburgers. We will also need volunteers.

If you have any questions please contact me.
Thank You!

Mr. Moore

THE WEEK AHEAD

Academic Success Corner

Parents I have notice a substantial pick up in about half of our scholars' studies. The work ethic has increased in both the classroom and at home. There are some who are still not making the effort to perform and I am still very concerned with the lack of work or studying taking place outside of the classroom.

I realize that it may seem like a struggle and for many it is, but it is not too much work if we want them to move.

Please help me help them grow academically in the area of reading comprehension and fluency.
