

AGGIES On A Quest For Success

March 12, 2018

... from Mr. Moore's Desk

Greetings Parents & Scholars:

My my my FSA Writes is now behind us and although it is one down there are two more to go in reading, That means that the gas pedal to academic success in reading will still be pushed.

In fact, things are about to get more rigorous over the next few weeks The scholars will be engaged in a heavy review of the standards taught and I will cater to each's strengths as well as their weaknesses.

This upcoming week will get us back in the groove of mainly concentrating on reading comprehension, although writing will be a part of it since they will have constructed responses.

Parents I am asking that you be on the lookout for a call from me or for you to call me this week if you do not hear from me. I am emphasizing tutoring and plan to adhere to the published hours. If no one shows up, I will leave and head home.

If you have any questions please contact me.
Thank You!

Mr. Moore

Teacher Planning

March 16th

Spring Break

March 19th thru March 23rd

What's Happening

BADD (Brothers Accountable Driven & Determined) will meet this tomorrow from 3:45 until 4:15. I will be sending out information regarding our community service events and more.

i-Ready News Report

I am a little discouraged by the fact that our scholars are not getting on i-ready Reading any longer.

Please continue to push their work on this 7 minutes daily.

FSA Information

Parents although Spring Break is coming up we must have our babies work over the break to ensure no drop off in their understanding.

I am asking that you review their prefixes and suffixes with them from now through the 3rd week in April.
