... from Mr. Moore's Desk

Greetings Parents & Scholars:

Three weeks down... First and foremost, I pray that everyone had a wonderfully relaxing and blessed Labor Day Weekend. As we enter into our fourth week in the year of growth, things are going to become more rigorous in the classroom which means that I'm asking for increased understanding and assistance with the challenges of hoe learning. Parents, please enforce the required nightly reading and any homework that we send home that will cultivate growth in reading. It is essential that they understand that education is a key ingredient towards their success in reaching these goals. I look forward to many more weeks with my fifth grade family and helping them become life-long learners. Again, thank you for entrusting me to help make a difference in the lives your children!

Weekly Learning Standard

This past week we worked primarily on the following standard:

This week we will continue with this standard and add in the following: LAFS5.RL1.2 Determine a theme of a story or poem from the details in the text, including how characters in a story or drama respond to challenges

Aggieland Notes

Communication:

I will send home a weekly newsletter to update you on various expectations. Scholars will be expected to keep up with their assignments and due dates in their Tiger issued agenda. If anything pertinent arises, I will call, email or text you individually.

NEED Composition Books:

There are still many scholars that do not have the three composition books asked for. I am asking everyone to ensure that your child has all three and anyone that can to donate some to the classroom just in case.

Reading Stamina Information

Having stamina for something means being able to stick with something for periods of time. This stamina, or endurance, builds strength. Stamina can apply to lots of different areas, such as exercise or painting. It can also apply to reading. Teachers often think about a student's reading stamina. Reading stamina is a child's ability to focus and read independently for long periods of time without being distracted or without distracting others. Reading stamina is something that parents can help students develop. As your child moves further into the year, developing reading stamina will help your child navigate the longer texts and assignments. Please enforce that your child reads daily for a minimum of 30 -45 minutes, Monday thru Sunday.
